Description

Ingredients

Numerous studies have reported that both vitamins and minerals play an essential role in supporting optimal health. Both vitamins and minerals play many crucial roles in the body too numerous to list, most recognizably supporting bone health, immune health, and cardiovascular health, to name just an important few. Not everyone is able to take these vitamins and minerals in through their daily diets or are uncertain about the vitamin and mineral content of foods they are eating. Supplementation with a high quality daily multivitamin/mineral may provide benefit for those wishing to meet their recommended daily requirements of minerals and vitamins.

A study published in JAMA (Journal of the American Medical Association) found that some groups of people are at a higher risk for vitamin deficiencies and inadequate vitamin status, these deficiencies and sub-optimal levels may lead to poor health. Supplementation with vitamins such as K, C, E, B₁₂, B₆, and A were found to play beneficial roles in the prevention of poor health.

Carotenoids, such as lycopene, lutein, and zeaxanthin also play an important role in supporting eye health. These carotenoids are found in high concentrations in the eyes, and have proven their efficacy in numerous trials. Supplementation with carotenoids is important and are generally not found in many daily multivitamin/mineral supplements.

Taking a daily multivitamin/mineral is important; however, the quality of the ingredients included is critical. Many minerals are poorly absorbed; Alpha Base uses fully reacted minerals utilizing optimal absorption.
